Come one, come all to this year's exposition of all things technical, scientific, sci-fi-riffic, and well, geeky!

PhreakNIC was started eight years ago as a hacker convention, but has since expanded to include other areas of interest to the technically-minded individual, including science-fiction, fantasy, anime and gaming.

There will be plenty of partying and socializing from the rooftop patio overlooking the downtown Nashville skyline. There will be technology and science fiction-related panels and presentations during the day on Friday and Saturday, organized tournaments of games all weekend long and our annual costume party on Saturday night. Nashville Linux User's Group (NLUG) will have a room full of computer geeks ready to answer your questions about Linux and even help you install it on your own system.

Some of the events this year include:

- Gaming tournaments (BYOB - Bring Your Own Box), as well as a Paranoia XP LARP and other console/card/board gaming
- Cultural speaking tracks (sci-fi/fantasy, etc.)
- Technology speaking tracks (including some hands-on workshops)
- The return of "Hacker Hook-Up"

See you there!
